FEDERAL SUPERVISORS

ORDERED TO ENFORCE ATTORNEY GEN. ERAL MILLER'S INSTRUCTIONS.

New York Democrats Declare Against It and Say They Will Not Allow the Officers Near The Polis-Trouble Is Looked For.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2 .- Within the has been given to elements which caused him to lose his situation, and may come together in this city on the action of the commissioners in the election day with a sharp crash. One bation. of the elements is the announced adherence of Attorney General Miller to the customs of the past under Judge Bradley's decision in accordance with which federal supervisors of election will be placed anywhere it is deemed wise within election enclosures. The other and opposing element lies in the fact that Lieutenant Governor Sheean, chairman of the New York state Democratic campaign committee, has issued an address to the Democrats of muster role of most congenial and the state in which he cites Juc'ge Bradley's decision and calls on Democrats to see that federal supervisors do not enter the booths.

this city particularly will make a stubborn resistance to federal officials if they encroach upon the lines Mr. Sheehan has officially marked out in The Finances and Health of the City as opposition to the directions in the general circular. That this outcome is anticipated by the federal officials of the city is evi-benced by the fact, United States Marshal Jacobus today sent a telegram to Acting Attorney General Aldrich, calling attention to what he designated, "inflamatory proclamation of Lieutenant Governor Sheehan," in regard to the presence of federal supervisors at polling booths. Judge Aldrich responded he had nothing to say about the proclamation except to refer to the policy of the government on the question as out-lined in instructions issued to marshals, supervisors, etc., yesterday by Attorney General Miller. He also telegraphed Marsha Jacobus this afternoon to b governed by instructions contained i that circular. It has been today ascer tained that the law officers of the de partment of justice at Washington have carefully examined the statutes and opinions rendered in the cases arising out of alleged violations of election statutes before yesterday's circular was issued by Attorney General Miller. A poster has been sent out by the Democratic state committe all over the state by tens of thousands. It is a sheet almost 2x3 feet and is printed in flaring writing. The head is "Democrats, enforce the law." Attention is called to the law regarding United States marshals at polling booths and to tederal supervision of elections. The poster reids: "Democrats, enforce the provisions of the law to the letter and stand on your rights as American citizens. Do not permit the Republicans to use rooms or buildings within 150 feet of polling places for the purpose of bribing voters. You have the power to prevent it and it is your duty to arto prevent it and it is your duty to arrest all all such malefactors." "The circular means," said a Democrat, "that there will be no monkey busishooting on election day if the Republicans attempt any foolishness."

"This means," said the Republican, who has been actively connected with prosecutions brought in the United States court yesterday, "that the Democrats have made up their minds to carry the state by money, fraud and force. Chinese Regard the Introduction of the Guillotine With Pleasure.

It is said that the guillotine has lately been introduced by the French into their colony of Tonquin, says the London Globe. Our neighbors, as all the world is aware, have had, and still have, plenty of work to do in the way of exterminating piracy in that vast and as yet unremunerative possession. And the method by which they endeavor to exterminate the pirate (when they catch him, which, as a rule, they do not) is that of decapitation. That ceremony has hitherto been performed in the primitive and rather barbarous native way. The culprit being placed in a convenient position, used to light a cigarette and wait for the executioner to take a shot at his neck with a big sword. Sometimes the headsman aimed straight and sometimes he did not, and a feeling had long existed among the gentlemen of the piratical profession that an execution thus executed was distinctly an unpleasant process for the patient. Consequently the introduction of the 'wood of justice' has by no means produced the effect which the French authorities desired and expected. Instea of being impressed with horror of this mode of execution, the natives of Tonquin are said to be highly delighted with it. In fact, they regard the guillotine as a most ingenious article de Paris, and paper man?" inquired the kind old they have already witnessed one ex- lady. ecution with every demonstration of enthusiasm. Dying, they say, is mirable invention of the superior paper." European intelligence. The result is that considerable satisfaction is expressed in piratical circles, and it is confidently anticipated that piracy will shortly increase very considerably, as nobody in Tonquin would mind being abbreviated instantaneously by the guillotine. Death in short, has lost most of its terror because the process of dying has been rendered so

E. church, cargo was rapidly discharged and our most able engineers and inventors was sent to the house of Ben Dixon, a stored in a place of safety, without for years, and some have striven hard to find a solution to the problem. Records of scientific discovery have been earnestly ransacked to find some clew, or, as it were, a guiding post to point the way for the uncertain explorer. It now appears that we may be compelled to await some new discovery, some new adaptation or some new generalization before the way to the much-desired solution may be found. The effect on the general industrial and economic development in electricity which would follow the discovery of some not too complex means for realizing an economy of even 40 or 50 per cent of the energy value of fuel is indeed almost incal culable.

Then truly would electricity become the almost universal agent in the production as well as the transmission of power. The steam engine would go out of use almost entirely. We should burn our coal, not under steam boil ers; it would be consumed in electric generators. Our steamships would have their machinery replaced by such generators, and their propellers would be turned by gigantic electric motors, connected with the generators. The speed would be increased so as to still further shorten the time of an ocean voyage. The uses of electricity as a heating agent would be vastly extended, and it goes without saying that our lighting would be accomplished at much less cost.

A WONDERFUL WAGON. It Runs Without Horses By the Use of

Gasoline. Mr. W. T. Harris, a Baltimore machinist, formerly of Louisville, Ky., has invented a mechanical appliance which promises to revolutionize wagon transportation and existing devices for the propulsion of street The ideas of Mr. Harris cars. been embodied in a wagon, which has been built and which is to move from place to place as desired without the aid of horses. The sample wagon to demonstrate the practicability of the invention and to show that the necessary power can be developed and applied as intended is about sixteen feet long. has five seats, with room for twenty persons and weighs 6,000 pounds. The motive power is supplied by a Vanduzen ten horse-power gasoline engine which is placed under the floor of the wagon between the front and rear axles. It is concealed by steps on each side, extending from the guards over the front wheels to the guards over the hind wheels. The engine is compact and occupies a small space. The additional machinery is concealed in a similar manner and requires but little room. The power is transmitted from the engine to the running gear in the following manner.

On the side of the engine is a solid metallic fly-wheel, forty-eight inches in diameter. Resting against the flat surface or side of this fly-wheel is a friction-wheel, whose circumference is of leather and which revolves at right angles to the fly-wheel. A similar friction wheel being on the same shaft, revolves in unison with the first friction-wheel, and turns a metal disk in the same way that the flywheel turns the first friction-wheel, The metal disk in its revolutions works a chain similar to a bicycle chain, passing around a toothed wheel which is fixed to the hind hub. By the mechanism used the power is not transmitted from the fly-wheel by means of a belt as is customary, but from the flat side of the fly-wheel to the friction-wheel.

A gasoline tank of more than thirty gallons capacity is under the rear seat of the van, and the gasoline will be fed to the engine by means of air pressure. A water tank of six gallons capacity, which is the quantity necessary for a day's supply, is placed under the front seat, and, if desired, additional tanks can be placed under the other seats. The driver of this unique machine is to be stationed in front and will be in juxtaposition to all the levers necessary to operate the wagon. These will include the brake, the speed lever and the steering apparatus.

THE COCKROACH.

The Enemy of the West India Insect Is the Scorpion. One of the worst enemies which the cockroach has is the scorpion, the latter being able to run it down even in the open. It was in Jamacai, West Indies, that the writer, sitting in a This question has at present no every thing, destroying in a short time boots, books and clothing and they leave a horrible odor behind them. Its only use seems to be that of a scavenger.

The particular cockroach in question came most cautiously from its retreat. The cockroach was on the forage, and the watcher was waiting until it was far enough from its home to give him some chance of squashing out its life,

The chance never came, for of a sudden the roach darted off at full speed, a rate which is by no means to be despised, in an almost opposite direction to its home. In hot pursuit was a scorpion, its tail bent over its back, going at its utmost speed, which was much greater than that of the cockroach. The latter was soon held in the claws of the former, and a sting by the tail seemed to kill it, apparently, instantly. It was the first good deed the writer had ever seen a scorpion perform, but the good deed of this one did not prevent it soon finding a home among some of its relatives in a bottle of spirits.

The New York Tribune thinks it may be interesting to note that scorpions apparently have no power to harm the common fowl. Fowls are passionately fond of the roach and the colored people in their quaint proverbs have these two on the sub-minister of Wilmington, Del., prophesies the end of the world in 1897. He expects that in that year the Jews will be restored to the Holy Land, and that they will build anew the temple against the second coming of Christ. He draws these conclusions from several much-discussed passages in the book of Revelation, and has been preaching sermons for some time past with the special object of preparing his flock for the events of 1897.
